Incident at a Gas Station
by Becky Olson

I didn't know that cousins could die
On brilliant August mornings, around dawn
In Phoenix, Arizona.
I didn't know that real people could be Murdered, people I spend Christmas with,
Nineteen year old people who
Fixed cars and teased their little cousins.

So I don't know if I should say it,
Brian was murdered, was shot in the head
The coffin's so small, and we won't
Open it, because of the hole, the brain.
They stole the money, they turned to go, then
They stole our Brian, too.
They've put him where we can't get him back.

My brother's hair is winging on the breeze,
Twelve years old and I learned I could die.
Grandparents depleted, heads bent,
Brian goes down, dirt on white, dirt on white,
Brian full of wonder, head inside out.
I hold my hand, I pray
I feel my pulse under my jacket.

Brian's girlfriend with their new puppy,
Her pretty hands and her new brave face
What happens when the dog dies?
Does grievance last the length of a dog's life?
When he was in high school, girls called our house
By mistake, giggled, hung up.
The dog runs away to see the lake.

My cousin Brenda won't life her head
Brenda who rides horses. Brenda, the Meanest big sister ever,
Tormented her sibling, then sang to him.
She is not a sister anymore.
Brenda, without a brother,
Cannot be a sister anymore.

My family has never seen such youth
At a funeral. But no one giggles,
And no one is hanging up now.
My brother kicks me accidentally,
So I punch him hard in the elbow.
He winces, he slumps, and when
I look up, Brenda is watching me.

We didn't know that Magic Markers
Smelled, until Brian showed us one Christmas.
The three of us sniffed them all.
I don't know why they gave him the late shift.
I remember that none of the flavors
Smelled like the real thing, like real
Grape, or like a real banana.

The police call and there are leads, but None of us, staring at his models, car.
Dad is driving to Arizona
To bring the things that were his. My Dad
Will stand like a robber in the dorm, will
Box photos and the text books,
And my dad will bring them home.

"I hurt my leg." *While virtually every student at SHS was using this excuse for everything from tardies to failing exams, Hank Tallman really did hurt his leg in a soccer game in Chile. What do we do on our "time off?" What time off? is the immediate response. SHS students have an eight-period schedule, part-time jobs (and sometimes not so part-time jobs, sometimes three or even four "part time" jobs). But when we do have a moment, stolen from Calculus, English, or Pacifica Projects we do find ways to fill our time: Messing around on computers, Sega Channel, playing video games, sleeping, hanging out at the Bowling Alley, the arcade, Denny's, the Pig, baking a lot of cookies... and sometimes eating them all! sleeping, surfing, swimming, golfing, dancing, sleeping, hanging out in video stores and renting movies, seeing everything that's playing at Cannes, eating, sleeping, hanging out at friends' houses until they send us home, cruising-the-gut, reving your engine at annoying tourists, leg wrestling, sleeping, checking out pages on the Internet, scrounging money, camping at Short Sands, collecting Stars Wars action figures, swooning over John Travolta, and sleeping. Sadly, sometimes we do sensible stuff like homework. Sometimes we do it most of the night and we'd like to say we're really grateful to those dedicated teachers who are preparing us for a challenging future. But we won't.

Renaissance Fair

...started off with folk songs by Jon Broderick, Amber Robison, and friends. The Symphonic Band came next, followed by the Madrigal and Concert Choirs. The audience was very responsive to this performing arts concert and was pumped for the Renaissance Fair by the time lunch rolled around. The scheduled barbecue on the front steps was rained out and had to be moved inside but everyone's spirits were high and it didn't detract from the day too much. After the barbecue, the booths and exhibits opened up and people started to browse. Booths included the fortune telling booth, the French booth, the 1960's music booth, and Star Wars memorabilia. While all that was going on in the gym, there was an open mic in the cafeteria for anyone who wanted to participate. There were acts such as musicians, dancers, and the beat box. The people that stayed for the Renaissance Fair had a good time and the people who left missed out.

Our Apologies

Well, what can we say but we tried?! You can even turn to the graduation pages and see the Senior Prom picture and see that, despite powerful persuasion techniques, not all the Class of '96 showed up for the last formal dance of the year. Many of us would have liked to see that happen, but some of us had other plans. Kevin Rainey and Pat Mochel were scheduled to attend the Primus concert in Portland (though Pat ended up not going and still could have showed up to dance). Others like Chad Toninado, decided working at Papa Murphy's would be loads more fun then challenging Ryan Bandonis, Peter Doyle, Katie Hanson or myself to a wild bowling match at Evergreen Lanes or playing a bit of pool with Sara Libby, Kimm Balzer, and Brandi Brasfield before the dance. There were others who didn't show, maybe because they had a strict budget. But just because it's Prom doesn't mean you need to rent a tux or buy a five hundred dollar dress. Dana Feehan only spent $25 on her gorgous gown, while Ethan Osburn showed up in a nice pair of slacks and a checkerd shirt. As for food, you don't have to go all the way down to Manzanita to the Blue Sky Cafe with Chris Baker and Becky Olson, you can stay right at home like Sally Maltman and Nick Kerwin, whose pre-dance activities were eating a bowl of Top Ramon while watching T.V. They may say we were just a bunch of starry eyed dreamers when we said we wanted everyone from the Senior class to come to prom. We may have been, but not all our hopes were crushed, because we got Julie Erickson to come and she even showed up in a dress! (A Picture of all the Seniors at prom can be found on page 17).

Pacifica Projects

...As the careers of the seniors at SHS wind down, their lives seem to get more and more hectic. On Wednesday, May 29 the Fourth Annual Pacifica Project Presentations were held at the Convention Center. In 1996 the entire student body was given the opportunity to attend, and many took advantage. The presentations started off with a short speech by Mike Hawes and then the actual presentations began. The first session began at 1:00 and the whole program wrapped up at 4:00. Each presentation was allowed thirty minutes, but most only took about half that time. The seniors seem to be breathing a little easier these days, knowing that the dreaded Pacifica Projects are over with. The projects this year offered a wide range of community service and involvement. Projects included: Music for the Future; Hello Dollie; Seaside Tsunami; Punt, Pass, and Kick II; TAG Mentors at Broadway; Blue Bins & Paper Cuts: Recycling at SHS; Stuff: the Talent Show; Forest Dump; and Camp Kiwanilong Improvement Project; Habitat for Humanity; and Hoop it Up!—Layout by Jenny Custer and Kelsey Hertig.

BACCALAUREATE by Becky Olson

Lori doesn't remember it this way.

We were five, still not used to the institution of public education. It was recess on a rainy day. We each leaned against the windowsill of our kindergarten classroom, looking out of separate windows. The day before, this short long-haired girl had accused me of stepping on her purple jacket. I had never been accused of anything before.

"Hey, do you want to be my friend?" I asked. "My Mom said I might get to go to Ramblin' Rod for my birthday party."

"I'm going there for my birthday party, too," she quickly retorted. We continued to look out at the rain from the same window.

Maybe I'm wrong in my memory, but I'd like to imagine it anyhow. I'd like to believe that the friendships within the Class of '96 sprouted this way—simple conversations, instant acceptance, and then constant accompaniment.

Thirteen years later, the sun is finally out, and somehow we cannot withdraw from these relationships as easily and innocently as we secured them. And yet this is not the end. It is not even the beginning of the end.

Right away we figured out a way to identify one another. We learned to connect classmates with their actions. Thus we labeled the boy who carried scissors upside down, the girl who could climb the rope, the boy who could subtract in his head, the girl who bit. At the time we fell easily, comfortably into these truths.

On January 28, 1986 you were filed into the cafeteria by our second grade teacher to watch a space shuttle take off. You had never seen one launched before. The Challenger exploded a few seconds after you finished shouting "Blast off." You were filed back to class, and the principal was outside lowering the flag. Your teacher was crying. You didn't know that teachers could cry.

Even after we knew each other's names as well as our own, we had the girl who always won in tether ball, the boy who flipped the teacher off, the boy who could draw, the girl who peed her pants in front of a microphone. There were slumber parties, basketball games without strategies, class movies, boyfriends and girlfriends who you "went out" with primarily at recess and lunch. Once in a while, you called them.

Junior high merged the three schools, and more and more classmates joined us from places other than Seaside. We had to make all new identifications. We wanted new ones for ourselves. People became sports stars. People became popular. People became musicians and rebels and mini-politicians. But we remained, unnervingly in the eyes of our peers, the girl who puked peanut butter on the teacher, the boy who sucked his thumb.

In Mr. Vaughn's Social Studies class you talked about war. You talked about the Middle East. On October 15, Mikhail Gorbachev was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize. But you weren't interested in the Iraq crisis. You were interested in getting people to like you. You were part of a generation which only felt a slight chill of what was the cold war, a generation too busy joining different church groups and contemplating jobs and memorizing the Bill of Rights to think about communism.

In high school we sought the opportunity to become new people, not the people our classmates pegged us as, but our true selves. As a class, we unearthed our passions. Some of us were passionate about school, but for others it was barrel racing, baseball, driving fast, playing the bass, or falling in love. We were goofy in airbands or at the lunch table. We were solemn when our friends' parents were going through divorce, when grandparents died. Even as we grew apart in interests from our friends, we depended on them more: for help in algebra, for an accurate pass, for a quarter or a good laugh or an opinion about politics. But if we could respect the new beings who surrounded our lockers, we were still attached to our first memories. Cabaret solos and numerous public speaking engagements could not cancel out the fact that I had an accident in front of a microphone in the third grade. I am reminded of that horrible day about five times a year. We are a passionate class and a class with a pretty good memory. This is both wondrous and frustrating, not to mention dangerous.

This year, your chatting was interrupted by Channel One and you learned Itzhak Rabin had been assassinated. You were just learning about the Diaspora, about Zionism. You were filling out applications. You were thinking about maybe leaving Seaside, seeing the world. You were practicing the art of compromise—with your jobs, friends, and family.

Graduation

Welcome to Baccalaureate... Preston Palmquist & Misty Merrill introduce the next speaker. Just Kickin' back. Sandee Nimtz, Patti Rhodes, Matt Gudge, Dan Philbrook, Julie Erickson, and Valedictorian Elle McKay wait for the Graduation cerimony to begin.

As the Class of '96, we, in a sense, belong to one another. Each of us plays a part, if very small, in every other classmate's memory. To some, we are best friends or worst enemies. To others, we were brief conversations in Chemistry, a smiling face in the lunch line. In the years to come, we will find ourselves stumbling across these mental snapshots, squinting our brains to remember a name, a voice.

And you know what? No matter what happens in your future, you will always be to the rest of us the girl who could hang upside down on the monkey bars, the boy who was afraid of dogs. Christa McAuliffe was the first private citizen to die in a NASA launching, but to her high school Social Studies students she was much more. She was maybe the one who wrote a letter of recommendation, the one who noticed a hidden talent for geography. Gorbachev is perhaps, to those who knew him when he was young, the boy who had the beautiful smile, or the boy who wondered aloud. Rabim was more to his friends than an inspiring leader of peace. He was maybe a strong hand, or the man who noticed you and waved. These significant figures in history are much more significant to those who loved and knew them.

Whatever your future, whenever you are thought of in the minds of those surrounding you now, you will be thought of as you are thought of now. You will be the Spanish partner before the surgeon. You will be the boy on the bus before the golf pro, the teacher's pet before the policewoman, the free-throw shooter before the father. We, as your classmates, already think that you're significant. We hold on to these titles because they are our investments in you, the little piece of us within you. You have played significant roles in our lives. You have helped to shape our lives, our very personalities. We know what you can become years from now because we've watched you become who you are.

It is the end of our daily influence on one another. We will no longer select best friends on the basis of their birthday parties. We will no longer depend on one another as we have grown so used to. Each of us, now, must take the person called "me", the person who is a little of everyone here, and introduce that self to new classmates, new friends, and co-workers. Yet our memories will periodically somersault back to the years we are about to commence, and we will be struck, again, by someone we went to school with in Seaside. It is not the end of our personal growth. It is only the end of the beginning of our personal growth together.

Sitting pretty with Patti Rhodes, Rachel Neuman, and Molly Golubicuas.

Congratulations! Danita Pappas says her "hi's" and "thank you's" in the halls.

Scott Reilly: We're here to leave you, our peers, the Class of 1996, with some thoughts before we go our separate ways. The five of us stand before you because we have been labeled as successful. Sure, when it comes to Peechies, Trapper Keepers, and Dixonticonderogas [holding a pencil].

The accomplishment this party of five [the Valedictorians] represent tonight is merely academic, which is only one color in the rainbow of success. Within the class of 1996, an example of every color can be found. We are each our own color combination, be it plaid, polka dot, striped, or tie dyed. We are all successful. After all, we've made it this far.

Brian Bates: Each of us have a plan about what we are going to do with our lives after graduation. We each have an idea concerning what direction our lives will go and what steps we must take to get there. It is important for us to have these goals because they give us something to work toward and give our lives some meaning. Eventually, we may or may not achieve these goals but we must not forget that just because one goals is realized, it doesn't mean that we should stop dreaming. Goals are the driving forces in our lives that give us something to reach for. A person's individual success can be judged on the goal that they set and how they go about reaching them. Don't be afraid to set lofty goals. Even if you don't reach them, you'll still gain some valuable experience that will help you later on. Through hard work and perseverance, our dreams can become reality.

Sally Maltman: Many people have influenced or affected us in our lives. These people, as positive role models, play a key part in our successes by offering guidance and providing insight and motivation. These role models take many forms: an adventurous teacher who inspires us to broaden our horizons; an honest and fair family friend who demonstrates high moral standards; a celebrity hero who uses power and wealth to do good deeds for the needy. Class of 1996, I encourage you now to go out into the world and become positive role models yourselves. Strive to emulate these teachers, parents, friends, and other who have inspired you so greatly in the past.

Chloë Kisvarday: Effort may easily be considered one of the key ingredients to success. No matter how many goals and aspirations you may have, they will be nothing more than unfulfilled dreams unless effort is applied. I've debated whether effort is a quality, a trait or a learned discipline and have come to the realization that it is all three. For some people, applying effort is second nature; for others it is a conscious battle. Much of our success can be attributed to the tremendous effort we have displayed throughout our school careers. We are aware that to become successful adults, it will require great diligence in all aspects of our lives. Only through unrelenting effort will we become productive members of our communities. In our future endeavors, when we find ourselves saying, "That's good enough" or "I just don't feel like it," don't settle for mediocrity, strive for greatness. When effort is applied, it is impossible to be anything but a success.

Elle McKay: When it comes to 'the stuff success is made of' we leave you with only three pieces in the puzzle that we finally complete tonight. Whether it be displaying perseverance in reaching our goals, offering guidance and providing motivation, or applying unrelenting effort to your work, you are successful.

I believe the putting together of this puzzle in best summed up by Robert Louis Stevenson when he said, "To travel hopefully is a better thing than to arrive, and the true success is to labor." We will find our richest future successes in the striving to succeed.

As we walk out of here this evening, as graduates of Seaside High School, we are all accomplished. Not only in receiving our diplomas, but in the recognition of the struggle we endured. We must not forget who have helped us make it here tonight. So, in other words, no one's leaving without hearing some thank you's.

The five of us wish to recognize our teachers and classmates for their invaluable friendship and guidance. As for each of our own families, they are to be thanked in our individual voices. And to all of you for being here tonight to celebrate our success, we thank you.

Every year the SEABREEZE staff does its best to reproduce the splendid countenances of every single person at dear old SHS. So, in the spirit of this undying tradition of seek and ye shall find (or perhaps, seek and destroy) we send out our tenderest and most gullable members (the freshmen) armed with point-and-shoot cameras, color film, and a list. [Sometimes we even make them put the list together, too—thank you, dear Melanie.] They lose the list a couple of times unless they have made several copies (thanks, Michelle), then wander the halls and peer fearfully into the rooms of upperclassmen. Eventually they come back with their precious cargo—the list with crossed out names, confused eyebrows hovering over the names of people who don't actually have any classes at SHS (since they're doing it all at Bridges), & photos. Here—the results. They never find everybody, but some of the everybodies they do find are right here (at the right). Check out the index for the people you're still searching...

It isn't a game, a match, a tournament, without the fans. Without their support high school sports aren't possible. Without fans there is no reason to pop popcorn and make hot dogs. There is no reason to have cheerleaders, or a pep band. There is no reason for after game dances, assemblies, or spirit sticks. So this page is dedicated for all the fans who spend their evenings cheering, stomping, and making wild and crazy sounds for home events as well as away.—Staff

Come and get some of the business pal! Nick Kerwin and James Massa engage in the full blooded, no holds barred death match known as Karate Fighters. In a close battle, Kerwin overcame Massa 5-4 and became the Cannon Beach Champion. Kerwin, who is joining the pro circuit next year stated, " I live my life for the thrill of the battle and there is nothing more pleasing then the taste of blood."

More Zany Sports...

If I could do any sport in the world it would be surfing, maybe. It's cold out there and you have to wear that really tight suit and your hair gets totally gunky.

Of course, I always loved dancing. Maybe I could join Barishnikov wherever he's leaping yards above the ground. Then again, they say dancers feet hurt all the time and not like I'm a wuss or anything, but I'm not into pain.

This weekend, I went outside work and there were these two guys from England in a spitting contest on the side walk... in downtown Seaside. They asked me if I wanted to join. Being a responsible citizen and noticing the accuracy of their aim, I said no very politely and went on my way.

Anyway, where's the aerobic workout in spitting?

Skateboarding is phat.

The ultimate is Rock'n'Bowl!

Cruisin' around the Pepsi barrel. Tricia Brown races her horse Kitty while competing in a Rodeo in Hermiston. Her horse threw a shoe and Tricia didn't place above tenth.

for the kiddies

Kids play with tinker toys, Sega, Nintendo, Super NES, and SimCity. They like GI Joe and Barbie and cartoons.

None of these things qualify as sports, not even as "other sports" but kids do like sports.

They play tag and hide-and-go-seek, street hockey and street rock, kick the can and wall ball.

The kids among us like paint ball guns and "capture the flag," Arm Chair Quarterbacking and baby oil slipandslides. —staff

Rafting down the mighty Deschutes, sleeping underneath the clear starry sky (or dead squirrels and other stuffed wildlife hanging on the walls), thus starts the 1995 season. Well, you might not be able to say the beginning, many started preparing long before there ALARMS BUZZED in the early morning waking them up for daily doubles. Lifting weights, attending numerous camps (including the Seaside volleyball camp instructed by Wade Benson), conditioning on the BEACH, playing in the SEASIDE TOURNAMENT (if you didn't play you picked up garbage, or put up nets—a special thanks to the selected few who worked on the rainiest, windiest day in the history of summer).

After their trip to Eastern Oregon, varsity came home and went to work mopping up the floor their first half of the season. Though the second half wasn't as smooth, they still played in the league playoffs placing third, an accomplishment that hasn't been obtained for about four years. The girls PLACED FIRST at the Gladstone tournament and third at the Dalles, Philomath, and Seaside tournaments.

All that preparation also played a positive effect on frosh and J.V. teams. The frosh were POWER HOUSES. "We never lost a third game that counted." Commented Frosh coach Neil Priddy. That would explain their 12-2 season. "I am very impressed with their skill, attitude and over all playing ability." added Jason Boyd, Head Coach.

J.V. had a roller coaster of a season. Though their scores didn't always show it, they had powerful moments. "When we played Astoria it was like we were playing a seventh grade team." Ward reflects on the home game against our long time rivals Astoria.

All the girls ended the season strong! Though not always playing how they wanted, they still broke the four year drought by placing third in the playoffs. To sum it up you could simply say, they were burnin', rippin', hot! —Michelle Gribble *game forfeit due to ineligible SHS player.

Even with a 3-6 record, the varsity football team managed to give us an exciting season. The Gulls were undefeated in non-League games. They beat both the Dalles and Sherwood in fine fashion. Then for the first time in school history, Seaside played a team from a foreign country. They played the Windsor Dukes from Windsor, British Columbia, which is located in Canada, and beat them 26-0.

The tough Cowapa League posted a huge challenge to the Gulls. The final League record was 0-6. Both Rainier and Scappoose were two contests that were won by Seaside, but because an ineligible SHS player, the Gulls were forced to forfeit the games. Nine players missed the final game of the season due to a skirmish out on the field during the fourth quarter of the St. Helens game. This all out brawl, although uncalled for, awakened the crowd from a three quarter long slumber.

The 1995 Gulls were a junior dominated ball club. There were only twelve seniors to go along with the twenty juniors and seven sophomores. This combination sometimes led to vicious thrashings of their opponents.

Two players, Ben Archibald and Peter Hill, received recognition as first team All-League for the Cowapa League.

Thanks to the large turnout of junior ballplayers, a J.V. team was formed. They competed against other teams in the Cowapa League and finished with a record of 4-5. The sophomores and scrappy freshmen also joined forces with the juniors to complete the J.V. roster. " Lack of experience and a couple of turkeys who weren't serious about playing was the reason why we had a losing record," explained sophomore Lee Flores. —Jake Baum

This season marked the second year for a girls soccer team at SHS. It was a year of fun in the sun and a blast in the rain and fifty mph winds. Hoochie Power was still in existance for the girls soccer team this year, even though the girls never did find a winning streak.

Bus rides were always a joy. Homework was done before the games and after was left for fun. The girls found a new love for the soon-to-be-bodacious bus rides, rack racing and hide and go seek. As the lights of the distant car behind the girls faded, they stealthed up into the racks of the bounding bus. Mainly consisting of juniors and seniors, and a helpful assistant coach, the girls managed to squeeze themselves into the racks above the seats.

Bus rides were not the only thing the girls did. Practices were a learning tool that played an important part in applying their skills on the soccer field.

April Rouse, Elle McKay, and Julie Erickson were named All District for the year, Mandy Grant and Sarah Dueber were named honorable mention.

Next year will be an eventful year with experience from all players. "This was a building year," pointed out Head Coach Dave Rouse. The team consisted of only eight out of seventeen girls with more than two years of soccer experience. –Camille Beers

The SHS soccer team continued its improving trend this year with another good season. The '95 squad fell just one game short of playoff bid and finished the season with four wins, two draws, and six defeats.

The team's near miss at the playoffs was best rationalized by senior team captain Barney Grant, "Eleven of me out there, and we would have been state champs."

The team suffered a few tough losses this year including falling 4-5 to Corbett after leading 4-0 at halftime. The team needed a victory in the final match versus St. Helens to make the playoffs. After equalizing the game 2-2 late in the second half, they gave up two unlucky goals and ended their season. The St. Helens game was the second game that the team wore their red and white jerseys. The team bought new blue and white jerseys, but switched to their old red and whites for a possible change of luck. It almost worked, they hadew won the game before by eleven goals.

The district coaches named junior Jake Baker to the 2nd Team All-District Team. Adam Carlsen was named to the Cowapa League 2nd Team while Woodie Webber and Jake Baker made the Honorable Mention.

In post-season balloting, the team elected Barney Grant as their "Most Valuable Player." Goaltender Chris Hermansen was named "Most Inspirational" and James Massa was voted "Most Improved". —Robert Roley with Barney Grant

"I hate it when I wiff, I hate it when I wiff, god, I wish I didn't wiff so much." Ben Neuman walks a retreat after an unsuccessful try on goal.

"Get that camera outta my face, I'm trying to work here." James Massa, arguably the biggest slacker in SHS history, puts on a show for Woodie Webber and his fans.

RUN, RUN, RUN, YOU CAN'T CATCH ME!

Cross Country is a challenge that few rise up to meet. Though there are many struggles to defeat, the joy of crossing the finish line outweighs the struggles by far.

This season got off to a bit of a rough start. We lost many varsity runners last year, but many new runners joined up. Coach Branson puts it this way," People who choose to participate in Cross Country are cut from a different breed. They are smart, intelligent people; infact, the girls team had a combined G.P.A. of a 3.62, and the whole team together had the combined average of a 3.32. They are unique individuals and that makes them fun to work with." The good ol' runnin' gulls managed to continually improve individually and, as a result, the whole team improved. One of the highlights of the season was the return of Coach Neil Branson. Along with Assistant Coach Gene Gilbertson, and volunteers Jan Priddy and Kris Powell, the team continued to grow, both physically and numerically.

Perseverance is a key quality of a Cross Country runner, and it was definitely a part of every girls' vocabulary. The girls had a pretty tough year. While standing at the starting point at Districts, Becca Shaffer commented, "This is where it all ends." Her teammate, Katy Seeborg, looked at the starting point and then turned to Becca and answered, "No, this is were it all begins." The girls then went on to place third at Districts. There was however one girl who managed to pull through Seaside's losing streak, Mandy Grant. In response to her outstanding season she stated, "I had a feeling that this season was going to be one of my best, I never imagined that it would be this good."

The boys team also had a rocky season. However, they did come in third at the Tillamook Invitational, proving that they can race. The boys team as a whole improved tremendously. With strong leaders, such as Pat Capper and Peter Doyle, the team continued to grow in unity and perseverance.

Improvement is the word that best describes the 1995 Cross Country team. Although it was not a winning season, everyone was a winner at heart. They all continued to do their best and they didn't quit.—Jeni Pannebaker

Players showed hard work, determination, and dedication for the season of '95-'96. Although the girls never hit too many winning streaks, first year Head Coach Ginny Hamer pointed out, "Not once this season did this team ever give up. They played with all their heart and all the love for the game." Hamer also added, "Our games were always complete and we gave it the best we could every time." This year Hamer was assisted by Wally Hamer, Jason Boyd, and Carol Stutesman, all first time coaches for their positions.

BOYS BASKETBALL

This 1995-96 Boys Basketball season got off to a rocky start in non-conference play. The Gulls began the year with a mark of 1-8, but everyone knows that it is league play that determines the success of your season.

Head coach Jeff Meeuwsen commented, "The low point of the season was our loss at Elmira. After that game, I knew that it would be gut-check time."

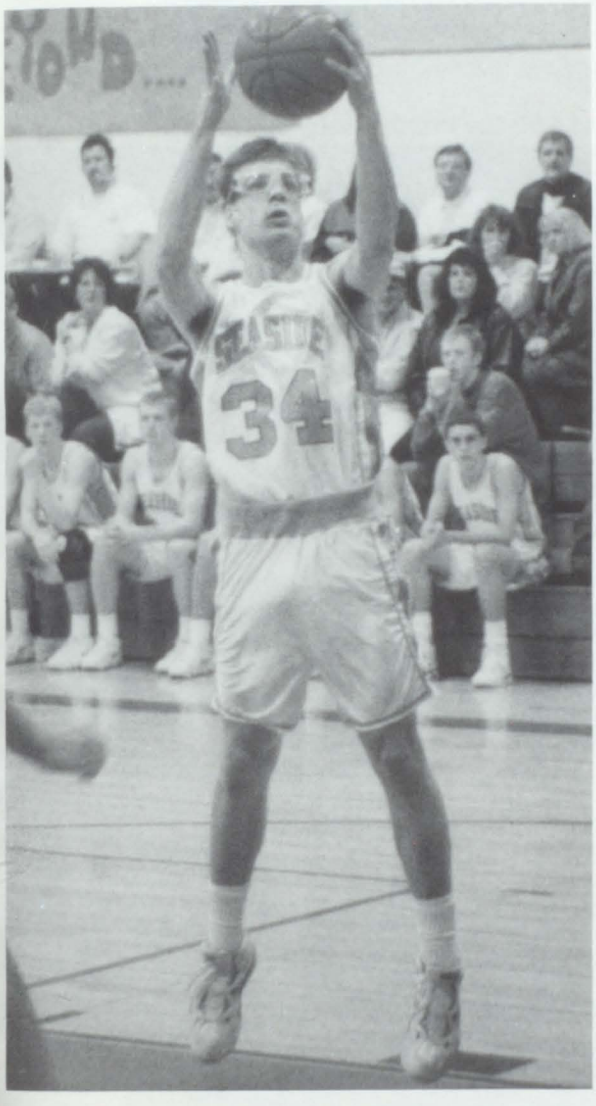
It turned out that the boys were ready for that gut-check. They came back with a strong win over St. Helen's to start Cowapa league play. This win seemed to set the tone for the rest of the season.

The Gulls added a win over a tough Clatskanie team and defeated Scappoose in the last game of the regular season to earn a spot in the Cowapa league playoffs. This success was surprising to most of the league. Meeuwsen stated, "It was definitely a high point for us to beat Clatskanie and Scappoose when most people expected us to be at the bottom of the league." Seaside showed their "gutsy" play again in the playoff game against Scappoose.

The Gulls rallied from a third quarter deficit to get within a point in the fourth quarter. Although Seaside ended up losing the game, it still showed that the team would not give up, no matter what the score is.

Meeuwsen is also looking toward some success in the future. He commented, "This year's team laid down the foundation for the next couple of years. We were a gutsy team that got after it. Hopefully, this will carry over to the future teams."

–Brian Bates



Give him the open shot and he'll score. Peter Hill makes it look a little too easy. It's hard to believe he does all this with only one eye.

"My favorite memory for the season was when I jacked a couple of out-backs for a quick two," commented James Massa after the 58-41 shellacking of a club team from Australia.

Even before the onset of the 1996 wrestling season, the Seaside High School wrestling squad was already looking toward the future. A team very thin in experienced wrestlers managed an excellent season competing in the always-tough Cowapa League. The team finished the year with a record of 1-6. Junior Gabe Sunnell was a bright spot on the team. Despite a nagging injury, Sunnell finished the regular season with a record of 13-2 and finished 2nd at Districts, which qualified him for a trip to the State Tournament. Sunnell went to state, which was held at Coos Bay's Marshfield High School, and placed sixth in the 142 pound division. Showing the team has good years to come were the twelve freshmen and nine sophomores. The team showed well at several big tounaments facing some of the best teams, both 3A and 4A, in the state. At the Pacific Rim Tournament, held here at Seaside, nine number-one-ranked wrestlers competed. The hardest obstacle for the team to overcome was starting each match with a twenty-four point deficit. They had to forfeit four weightclasses which they could not fill. —Robert Roley

SPLISH SPLASH

Monday afternoon, forty-five students sat on the concrete steps of the viewing area at Sunset Pool, dressed in their swimsuits with goggles and swim caps, waiting for instructions from Coach Mike Brown. The first day of the swim season brought many freshmen and upper classmen new to the sport, along with some familiar faces from last year. We had unfortunately lost part of our coaching staff and the team was grateful to have Mitch Ward and Kris Powell contribute their expertise.

League competition came quickly and both the boys and girls teams knew it would be difficult to overcome rival St. Helens. The St. Helens facility had once been an outdoor pool and now was covered with the material that appeared to be used for a greenhouse which made it condensate or "rain". Once the sun set, the only source of heat had been lost and steam started to rise up from the chlorinated pool water.

Our girls 200 yard medley relay and 200 yard free relay swam hard and won by an arm over St. Helens. The effort put forth by the whole Seaside Swim Team was just not enough, in the end, but both boys and girls finished a strong second to St. Helens.

Flooding of the Willamette and Columbia Rivers brought devastation to Oregon and Washington and to the District Swim Meet scheduled for that week. Swimmers were in a state of chaos to find out that the District Meet was rescheduled for the day of Sweetheart's. The dance was delayed until Sunday on the swimmer's behalf.

From 10AM to 4PM, Friday and Saturday, swimmers lay on the metal bleachers and the concrete floor reading Seventeen's Prom Issue, playing Game Boy, stuffing their faces with 'Nilla wafers, and attempting to sleep while frequently being splashed. Unexpectedly, Becky Blacketer broke her toe by stubbing it on a wrestling mat the first day, so Katie Hanson had to take her place in the 200 yard medley relay.

The success of the team at Districts was rewarded by blackberry sundaes at Dairy Queen and an eventful final bus ride home. Both teams finished third and were able to send Becky Blacketer, Shara Ford, Katie Hanson, Jennifer Visser, Lori Visser, and our first boy ever, Barney Boisvert to State in Corvallis.

The State Meet brought on another full week of perfecting strokes, starts, and turns in practice. Our girls medley relay and 200 yard free teams competed against 4A teams from all corners of Oregon. Shara Ford and Jennifer Visser also participated in individual events. In the 100 yard fly Visser placed 4th, the highest ever from a Seaside swimmer.—Jennifer Wascher

Districts—3rd out of 20 teams

BOYS VARSITY

SEAGULL SPIRIT!

Our most enthusiastic fan, Nora Mork, shows her spirit at a home football game. We couldn't have done it without her. Staff photo.

Fall rally practices began in August. To a few members, cheerleading was a new experience, but advisors Marcee Teeters and Debbie Nelson made things easier.

When school began, practice was three days a week with games on Fridays. The varsity team consisted of captain Misty Merrill, and co-captain Christa Sparks, with members Amy Cleys, Makaila McGraw, Leslie Smith, and Danita Pappas as the mascot.

The JV team members included Erin Symonds, Kate Kranzush, Stephanie Sheppard, and Cryshell Berg.

Wherever we were, both teams always created a lot of memories. We had our favorite songs, and sayings ("Do the Marcee!"). Cheering at the games was always fun, especially when we were winning!

RALLY!

Team members shuffled in and out for basketball rally. Two of the football JV members, Kate Kranzush and Erin Symonds moved up to varsity. Other varsity members included Christa Sparks, Amy Cleys, Diane Westmoreland, Amber Senn, and mascots Danita Pappas, Jessica Winner, and Crystal Ballard. The JV team consisted of Stephanie Sheppard, Cristy Keliher, Nikki Perkins and August Boyer. During basketball season, more stunts and dances were performed for the school. The basketball rally team did an excellent job of uniting as teammates as well as friends.

"It's a lot of fun, even when I got dropped on my face."

—Amy Cleys, who started on the top of the pyramid, and ended up on the floor. Hours upon hours of practice go into perfecting the stunts performed at basketball games. Although it is impossible to perform a perfect stunt, the rally team did an excellent job of impressing the crowds.

RAH!

FASTER AND FARTHER!

Between winter sports running long and The Pajama Game, hardly anyone showed up to practice the first week. Little by little more joined in and by the third week, there were nearly 80 people practicing.

The girls did relatively well in several early invitational meets. As the season progressed, many of the key runners were injured and J.V. girls started to take over. Although the team lost junior Rachel Morris to a transfer, the girls managed and freshman Holly Nelson joined Sarah Arndt, Michelle Hawken, Kelli Truax and Shannon Dion for the girls 4 X 100 team.

J.V. Districts were held in St. Helens but few girls ended up participating because of injuries. Most J.V. runners moved up to participate in Varsity Districts which took place in Clatskanie. Two girls managed to take 2nd in the District Finals and from there, went on to State. Those two were Michelle Hawken in the 300 meter intermediate hurdles and Shellie Dennis in the 1,500 meters. Although they did not place, they made great efforts.

On track awards night, several awards were given in three categories. Those that received them were: most improved—Brian Cole, Shellie Dennis and Matt Gudge; most inspirational—Kelli Truax, Michelle Hawken, Scott Reilly and Pat Capper; and most outstanding—Kelli Truax, Michelle Hawken, Ben Archibald and Peter Hill. —Emma Beckman

Boys track goes 6-1 and to State

"It was a great year. We had a very talented bunch of guys," explained boys and girls track coach Gene Gilbertson. "What kept us down this year was injuries."

Injuries aside, the season was phenomenal compared to other schools. The team finished much like they began, by blowing St. Helens out of the water with a 94-50 victory similar to a 113-25 shellacking in the season opener versus Clatskanie. Gilbertson said, "We ate up a lot of schools during the season—that excited us." The boys did eat up a lot of teams—all but one in fact.

Long distances were headed by Matt Gudge who ran like a mad man throughout the season. However, Districts are what separates the sheep from the goats. Gudge took Districts and placed well at state.

Throwing events were led by super-jock Ben Archibald during the long rainy season. His pure athletic skill was proven at State with a gem-like performance of 4th Place in the shot and a 5th place in discuss. These placings made Archibald a sure-shot for the All-State 2nd Team.

Another emerald in the rough was iron man Mike Cornes who finished seventh with an impressive effort in the pole vault, thus earning him a spot on the All-State 3rd team.

Gilbertson remained optimistic about lost varsity, "There is a great number of kids coming up that will be able to replace this year's seniors. We'll just reload and get after another great season."—Christopher Baker.

For the Seaside High School boys golf team, 1996 was another good year. They came back from last year, only having lost one player from a team that was undefeated in dual matches. They started off the year well with easy, early wins. They again faired well in big tournaments, winning the La Salle Invitational, beating an excellent field that included class 4A schools. Although they could not repeat the undefeated campaign of 1995, this year's team finished the regular season with a dual match record of 9-1.

The plague of the 1995 team was their inconsistent performance at the district tournament. That team finished third to two teams it had already defeated. This year, the team went into districts more focused on clinching a birth in the state tournament.

The first day of the district tournament was held at the Gearhart Golf Links. The team played very solid the first day of districts posting a team score of 331, good enough for a three shot lead over Tillamook and and eleven shot lead over Astoria. Sean Stratton shot 76 to lead the medalist chase. The final round of the tournament was held at Astoria G & C.C. Seaside had yet to play well at Astoria. The team played inconsistently again but pulled together for a 348 and a second place finish. The team had earned a trip to state. Stratton shot 82 and held off Keith Thompson of Tillamook for medalist honors.

The state tournament was held at the Eagle Crest Resort Course near Redmond. High winds made conditions tough at Eagle Crest. The team finished in 14th. Stratton finished in a tie for sixth and earned all-tournament honors.

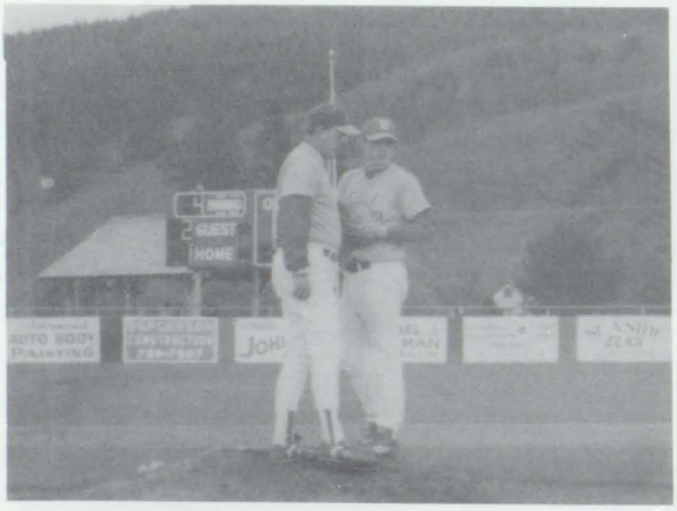
At the end of this season Coach Jim Auld hung up his cleats after twenty-five years of devoted coaching and passed on the responsibility to the next generation.

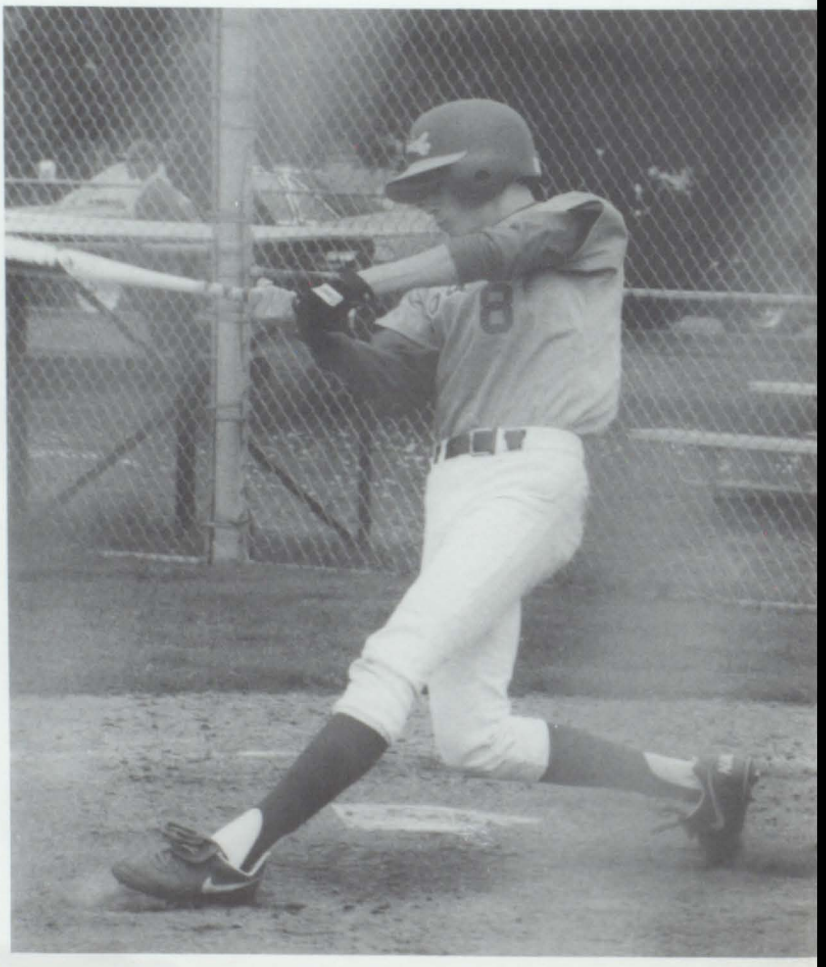
Throughout his coaching career, Auld has dedicated many hours to young athletes trying to reach their goals. During that time he has led many teams to league championships and one team to a state title in 1972. He has also coached numerous players to All-League and All-State Honors.

When asked how he would sum-up the last 25 years, Coach Auld replied, "Serving as the head coach for the past twenty-five years has been a great thrill. I have many fond memories of the players, the games, and of course the wonderful fans and community support I received. I will always remain a Gull at heart and wear the red, white, and blue colors of Seaside."

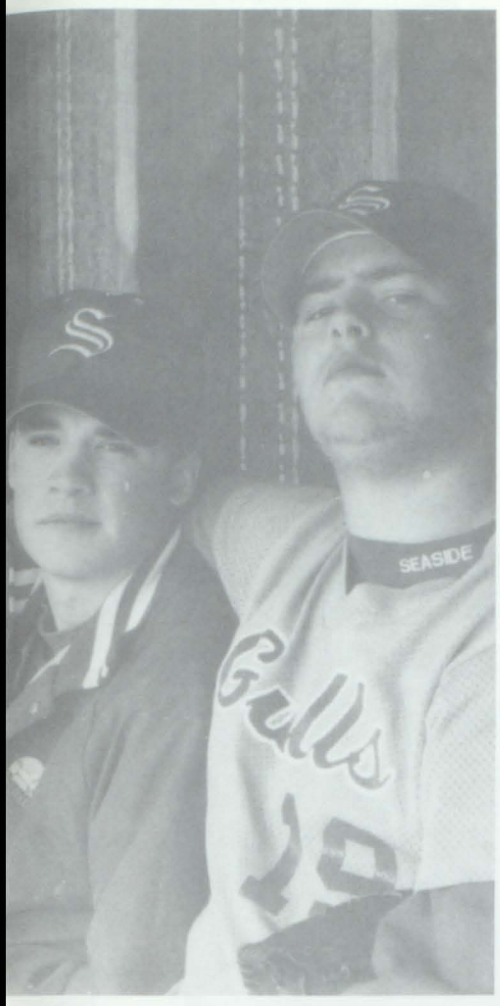
This years season got off to a rocky and rainy start. At least half the games were canceled and rescheduled due to rain. This forced the Cowapa League athletic directors to cut the twenty-one game schedule back to fourteen. Despite this downfall, the Varsity team was able to end the season with a decent overall record of 9 and 16, and a league record of 5 and 9, which put them in a tie for fifth with the Scappoose Indians. Several players this season recieved All-League recognition. Scott White received second team All-League for third base, and Lance Lyons, Tony Putman, and Craig Mendenhall received Honorable Mentions. — Jessica Williams.



Just a minute, I'm in a meeting. Coach Jim Auld consults with Brad Brown in between batters at the home game against Neah-Kan-Nie.



Is it the homerun cut? Jake Baum takes a chance at striking out while attempting to have the glory of hitting a homerun in their home game against Rainier.



Taking cover from the rain or just an excuse to relax? Chris Van Riper, Tony Putman, Preston Palmquist, Todd Perrigo, and Adam Israel take a break during a home game.

Still Searching.... 109

Is the ball ever gonna come? Scott White waits for the throw to first and the hopeful out.

1996 was an unusual year for the softball team. The girls started out strong in non-league games. After a few league games anything that could get in the way of playing games, did. Rain-out was a common word around the team and when the sky cleared, the girls finally got on the bus to make a trip to their first game in a few weeks. But something had to go wrong since they were going to play an actual game. The bus started smoking.

This did not stop the girls from getting to their first game. A couple of JV members found rides from parents who were on the way to the game and other people with motorhomes stopped to help. The Varsity began walking after they found out a bus wasn't going to come for a while. Luckily after walking a half of a mile a man in a Toyota truck stopped and picked up fifteen girls and coaches. They made it in time to win their first game.

Besides the adventures the girls had, they found time to improve their batting skills. Yet it was not enough to win all the games that they had hoped to. There were many new additions to the team, leaving room for position switching.

The team is looking forward to a better year next year, with only one position to fill. Four year veteran and catcher, Julie Erickson leaves some tough shoes to fill. —Camille Beers

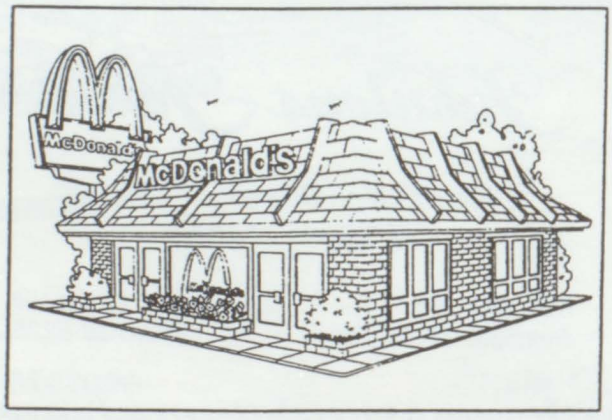
The Student Center.



Going to McDonald's is almost as much a part of school as going to class. You've made us the place to meet, to talk, to have a good time, to celebrate your victories and help forget defeats.

You've made McDonald's more than just a another place to eat. And that's why, at McDonald's, we say...

GOOD TIME. GREAT TASTE.™ McDonald's

The Friday before the last week of school 32 students and 3 chaperones, Mark and Becky Mizell, and Sande Brown, headed off for sunny Ashland, Oregon. The date was June 7, 1996. Students and chaperones alike were on their way to see Romeo and Juliet during the Shakespeare Festival in Ashland.

On the 8 hour bus ride there, they enjoyed many rest stops including lunch on the campus of the University of Oregon. Upon arriving in Ashland, they set up camp at Walker Elementary school where they were horrified to find that the showers were at the most, 5 feet tall.

That evening at 8:30, the well dressed group of high schoolers were sitting in the huge, outdoor, Elizabethan Theater which was located in downtown Ashland. When the play finally finished, it was nearly 11:30 and the tired students went back to the elementary school.

The next morning, the heat was intense and after an hour long tour of the Northwest Pacific Museum of Natural History, they headed off for lunch and then to Grants Pass. There, they boarded a jet boat called the Osprey II that was bound for the famous Hellgate Canyon and the rapids beyond. The 5 hour trip lasted until almost 8:30 and included an all-you-can-eat buffet in a restaurant along the river. All had enjoyed the heat and on the 1 hour bus ride back to Ashland they compared sunburns.

On Sunday morning, the group was transported back to downtown Ashland where they were given a back-stage tour of the 3 theaters that were used for the Shakespeare Festival. Included in the tour was a museum where many students had fun trying on costumes.

Then started the long trip home. Running late, they stopped in Medford for a quick lunch and then again in Grants Pass to visit the Champion outlet store. At 5:00, there was a short stop in a park near Roseburg for a snack and for students to phone their parents to say that they would be home at 10:30 rather than 7:30. At 9:00, they were even more behind schedule and they stopped in Salem for several large pizzas. Finally, to the cheering of the entire group, the bus pulled into Seaside High School's parking lot at almost 12:30 to see the vehichles of all their parents waiting.

The 1996 SEABREEZE was created with a window die-cut cover in matt black with metallic silver and black ink. Interior base ink was black on glossy 80 #191 stock with nine signatures and an eight-page tip-in. Most copy (except in ads section) is Times, Helvetica, or Palatino. Most senior class portraits and underclass potraits were done by professional photographers in the area. Black and white photography was shot and processed by the SEABREEZE staff. Color photos taken by the SEABREEZE staff were developed by Costco. All black and white prints were made in house. Photos were taken using student owned equipment, SHS Minoltas and Fuji 1000 zoom cameras. Individual staff member's by-lines can be found on the pages they completed. Copy was written on Macintosh computers using Microsoft 5.1a for word processing, Aldus Pagemaker 5.0 for layout, and an Apple Laserwriter 16/600 PS for printing. The SEABREEZE is entirely student generated and submitted to the plant camera ready.

Still Searching

"I'm still searching for a better way to find a way."—Alan Anderson-Priddy

"Still searching means we are all in search for a pure state of euphoria, whether looking for a college, a new group of friends, or even a different brand of root beer. We must look forward—that is what keeps us from staring at the ground suffering from eternal discombobulation."—Chris Baker

"Still searching, an interesting concept. We are all just dust blowing in the wind and by the way, where is Hoffa?"—Jake Baum

"To me still searching is about what people want to do with their life, what they are looking for."—Emma Beckman

"There is a hole in the apple but there ain't no worm."—Camille Beers

"I found a worm, but there ain't no apple."—Jena Cooke

"Why does anyone have to search for anything?"—Jenny Custer

"Still searching is what everyone is doing. We always want to expand our minds, enhance our knowledge, and find out all the answers. Does anyone ever stop searching? I believe the answer is no."—Sara Fox

"Still searching means that we are all still a little lost, and that's what you do in high school, you search. You search for yourself, your friends, your life, and what will become of you."—Mandy Grant

"I suppose that I'm still searching for fame, fortune, and obscurity. Once I have these I'll be looking for the one woman who is not crazy or mental, although I've never met a woman who is not by some means screwed up. (P.S. and I want to find the reincarnation of Elvis.)"—Barney Grant

"I'm still searching for my sanity. Just when I think I've found it I lose it again."—Michelle Gribble

"I search for happiness and adventure in any way that doesn't hurt anything else."—John Harmon

"Still searching is talking about going through high school and searching for you. All the changes we go through in order to develop the personal qualities that we end up having throughout life."—Kelsey Hertig

"To me still searching represents the urge to always learn more, to always look a little deeper."—Melanie Kabanuk

"Still searching means we are trying to look into the future for the mysteries of life."—Makaila McGraw

"For me, the search never ends for fresh powder, the shortest lift lines, and a dry curb to bust fat ollies off of."—Pat Mochel

"I'm searching to find out what I'm supposed to do in this world."—Jeni Pannebaker

"It is the searching and not the search, the pathway, not the destination, the view on the road, not the horizon's edge."—Jan Priddy

"We are still searching for the meaning of anything and everything. We question eveything in order to find reason and meaning."—Michelle Resa

"I'm still searching for my role around here. Man, those eyes on the cover are weird."—Kirk Reynolds

"I'm still searching for the one roll of film that has all the pictures that have been lost on it."—Liam Roley

"When I was seven my cat got run over. We still haven't found all the parts."—Robert Roley

"You have to wonder where everything goes once it's lost. Maybe when we die we'll get everything back in a big sack, and inside will be a list of every missing item and the place it disappeared. But until then, I'm still searching."—Becca Shaffer

"Everyone is still searching for something. It might be a lost shoe, or it could be the meaning of life. Everyone is different so we're all searching for different things."—Alicia Stuart

"Still searching is what I'm constantly doing. I'm still searching for my swatch watch which disappeared in sixth grade at school, my brand new camera with a zoom-in lens lost at a swim meet last year, and yesterday my Algebra II assignment that was accidentally thrown away."
—Jennifer Wascher

"I'm still searching for what to do in my future."—Jessica Williams
